TOLSTOI ON THE MASSACRE.

TEXT OF HIS LETTER ON THE KISHINEFF OUTRAGES.

Feels Chiefly Horror at the Criminals Occurred-All the Besult of Propaganda of Palsehood and Violence.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN LONDON, May 25 .- The full text of Count Tolstoy's letter on the Kishineff outrages, a brief extract of which has already been cabled to THE SUN, contains the following declaration of his attitude on the Jewish

As regards my views on the Jews, and on the horrible doings at Kishineff, they ought to be clear to all who interest themselves in my conception of life. My attitude toward the Jews cannot be other than as toward brothers whom I love. not because they are Jews, but because, like ourselves and everybody else, they are sons of one God, the Father.

Such love needs no effort on my part. for I have met and known excellent people among the Jews What I felt most deeply was horror at the criminals who are really responsible for all that occurred in Kishineff. and horror at our Government, with their clergy, who keep the people in a state of ignorance and fanaticism with their bandit horde of officials.

The outrages at Kishineff are but the direct result of that propaganda of falsehood and violence which our Government conduct with such tireless persistence.

"The attitude of our Government toward these events is only one more proof of their brutal egoism, which does not flinch at any neasures, however cruel, when it is a question of suppressing a movement deemed dangerous to themselves, and their complete indifference is similar to the indifferoe of the Turkish Government toward the Armenian atrodities and toward the most terrible outrages which do not affect their

SUFFERING IN KISHINEFF. Letters From There Tell of Great Need -Mass Meeting Plans.

A letter from Kishineff written by a former esident of New York has been received by B. Weiman of 78 Catharine street. It declares that the complicity of the police and moials have been established by the finding of great quantities of foot in the police stations, armories and houses of the officials and adds:

The placing of the city under ma rtial law has worked most disastrously upon the Jewish population their lives and property being in constant danger. Land owners, nobles and intelligent Russians in general go about distributing circulars, declaring that it is the will of the Czar that the Jews should be

The few stores that remained were closed for twelve days, and nothing could be had except the bread brought in from the neighboring towns; and of this one could get as one's share no more than a crumb.

Some idea of the first measures taken for the relief of the sufferers and of the need of funds may be gained from the account of the Kishineff correspondent to the paper Der Freund of St. Petersburg, appearing in the issue of May 12, which arrived in yesterday's

Three asylums were opened for the unfortunate victims of the massacre. Three large houses, having big and airy rooms, which had been used as hotels and wedding halls, were rented and there those who escaped the fury of the mobs with their bare lives, and lost every vestige of their belongings, were lodged.

Most of them are in distress. They lost their all, and if they do not receive aid from outside sources it is to be feared that they will never become independent. There are about 800 persons in these asylums and more cannot be accepted.

will be thrown open to the public.

A mass meeting was held in the Metropolis

Congregation Hand-in-Hand to elicit an expression of sympathy for the sufferers in the Russian riots. About 1,000 persons were present and resolutions were adopted expressing sympathy for the sufferers and concluding thus:

Resolved. That we petition his Excellency Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, to protest in the name of humanity and civilization against these outrages of the Empire of Russia.

Among those who spoke were Borough President Haffen of The Bronx, Tax Commissioner James L. Wells, the Rev. Father Thomas F. Gregg of St. Augustine's Church and the Rev. Father George T. Donlin of St. Jerome's Church. Mr. Haffen, who presided, said in part:

"We come here to night to let the crowned morarcha understand that such barbarism will not be tolerated by the United States. We come here to petition the President to compel these Russians to stop their outrages. We come here to make the foreign monarchs listen to the voice of our people and of humanity."

More than $1,500 was collected from the audience to aid the victims of the riots.

The noses of some had been cut off and some were so disfigured that it was almost impossible to tell them by their features. Others had their eyes put out. #### SUBWAY STRIKERS IGNORE C. F. U. But It Is Acting With the Contractors to Arbitrate Demands of Other Trades.

John B. McDonald, the general contractor for the subway, is trying to make an arrangement with the unions concerned in the building of the tunnel to Brooklyn similar to that between the Rapid Transit contractors and the Central Federated Union. Though the Central Federated Union made a mistake in indorsing the demands of the Rockmen's and Excavators' Union, its agreement with the contractors still holds, and a joint meeting will be held on June 4 to consider the demands of the unions which desire to change the prevailing rates of wages.

The Italian laborers' union, recognition of which has been refused by the Rapid Transit contractors, has in its turn refused to recognize the C. F. U. When a committee of the strikers called on the Rapid Transit contractors last week the con-mittee was told that the contractors would only negotiate through the C. F. U. com-

It was decided to notify the unions again to let the committee know of any changes they want to make.

The delegate of the Millers' Union re ported yesterday to the Central Federated Union that the millers are on strike in all of the flour mills of the Hecker-Jones-Jewel Milling Company in this city. He said that the Eccentric Firemen's Union had promised to support the strikers, but afterward allowed its men to work with nonunion men. A resolution was adopted ordering the firemen to support the millers.

In the course of the discussion the delegate of the millers said that ten "niggers" had been put to work in place of had been put to work in place of some of the strikers. There is a colored dele-gate in the C. F. U. Looking hard at him, Delegate Lord of the Steam Fitters' Union

The chairman declared the point well taken, and the negro delegate made a speech to the effect that trades unionism knew neither race nor color. He was applauded.

The delegate of the Millers' Union remarked that the girls in the cereal department, who were not organized, had refused to work with colored men.

evening. He said in part:

Just now the whole country is suffering from a reaction on the negro question. And the colored race have known a month of such depression and sorrow and heartache as they have not known in forty years. Other weeks have brought me occasional letters, full of personal grief, through loss of health or reputation or property, but no week has ever brought me such a flood of letters from colored teachers, college professors, planters and young men and women in industrial schools as this week. These multitudes of colored people are anticipating the loss of the suffrage in all of the Southern States, and their appeals show a bitterness of sorrow and an agony of apprehension that is most pitfful.

In 1886 Mr. Beecher said here that we must

"Only one way exists to reach this evil of monopoly," he said, "and that is to take possession of it. No few can be allowed to own the coal, the iron, the forests or the various other commodities and necessities of life; so the energy of unionism must be applied in securing these things for the people at large, the great mass of whom are neither capitalists nor members of trade unions.

He reviewed the rapid growth of trades unionism and said it was now in greater danger of its existence than in the days when it was more obscure.

Present attempts to raise wages Mr.

Darrow characterized as the natural result of the raising of prices, but said that any ends gained along that line were artificial and of little good. He presented an endless-chain illustration showing how.

Bishop alleges that in 1883 he was forced by threats to sell his preserving factory in Chicago to the Preservers' Company, receiving stock in that concern; that he was retained as manager of the factory, but received no dividends on his stock, and in 1891, after tendering the stock and giving due notice, took possession of his property. ## SULTAN OF JOLO WAS WRONG. He Thought That All Great Americans Wore Flowing Beards. WASHINGTON, May 24 .- The Sultan of Jolo holds an opinion radically different from that of THE SUN's correspondent, who contends that no truly great man ever wore flowing whiskers. It is related in Washington that on the occasion of Gov. Taft's first visit to the royal protegé Gov. Taft's first visit to the royal protégé of America, the Sultan expressed nimeelf as being greatly pleased with the Governor's presence, but somewhat doubtful as to his high official status. Gov. Taft detected something wrong in the Sultan's manner and asked the interpreter, a German sonin-law of the Jolo sovereign of the name of Schuck, what the matter was.

"He says it's the whiskers," asid Schuck.
"But I haven't any," responded the Governor, mystified.
"That's it, you haven't got them," Schuck explained.

Gov. Taft and the other members of the Philippines Commission were ultimately informed that the Sultan had got the impression that all great Americans were flowing beards, from the fact that the two military commanders in the island, Major Thompson of the Twenty-fourth Infantry and Major Sweet of the Twenty-third Infantry, had each a face adorned with a plentiful supply of long and silky hair.

In 1886 Mr. Beecher said here that we must insist on the suffrage for the negro; that races, like children, are trained by responsibility; that the poorest government of an ignorant man who governs himself is better than the best government that is imposed upon him from without. Mr. Beecher siso said that in view of two centuries of injustice and slavery, it might take a century before here and there we would see the outcropping of an occasional orator, an occasional colored educator. But what if Mr. Beecher could return to-day? He would find that the greatest orator, from many viewpoints, in the country is a black man. I know something of the lecture platform, for I have given forty lectures this year in the great citles of the country, in the States North and South, and a black man to-day receives from $150 to $200 a night, and there is only one other man in the country who receives as much.

Here is a letter from a colored man. He says that he has not a drop of white blood in his veins, that for years he has been a hard student before and after his days work, that he is giving all his children the industrial and higher education, that every one is ambitious, and that not one has caused him a heartache. And, having reviewed the taking away of the suffrage from him, and the closing of the door of hope in the face of his sons and daughters, he breaks out into a sublime burst: "But God forbid that I should hate my enemies whe degraded my father and nother, and who are now trying to curse my sons and daughters, he breaks out into a sublime burst: "But God forbid that I should hate my enemies whe degraded my father and nother, and who are now trying to curse my sons and daughters, he breaks out into a sublime burst: "But God forbid that I should hate my enemies whe degraded my father and nother, and then look at this negro's being an animal, and then look at this negro's being an animal, and then look at this negro's WASHINGTON, May 24 .-- The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Pierce gave a dinner to-night to celebrate the unveiling of the Rochambeau statue, which took place in this city a year ago to-day. George B. Cox Deserts the Hanna Side and Mckisson. Who Fought Hanna Bitterly, Goes Over to Him-Dougherty Also Gets in the Hanna Ranks

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 24.-Ohio Repubicans are now expecting a bitter contest in the coming State Convention over the proposition to indorse President Roosevelt's candidacy for the 1904 nomination. It will be a battle of the giants, with Senator Foraker, Gen. Grosvenor and George R. Cox, the Cincinnati Republican leader. championing the indorsement resolution, and Senator Hanna, Harry M. Daugherty and State Chairman Dick opposing the

In all previous contests, with a single exception. Senator Hanna has had Cox and most of the Federal officeholders with him. most of the Federal officeholders with him. Cox now believes that Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy should be indorsed. Gen. Grosvenor has likewise always affiliated with Hanna. Mr. Daugherty, on the other hand, since he failed to get the gubernatorial nomination, has opposed Hanna. Another accession to the Hanna ranks on this indorsement proposition is former Mayor Robert McKisson of Cleveland, who was the combine candidate for the United States Senate when Hanna was elected, six years ago.

The Republican press of the State is slmost unanimously in favor of Roosevelt's indorsement, and, thus supported, the Foraker people are certain to bring the question before the convention.

Senator Hanna's reasons for opposing the resolution have been given, and notwithstanding his repeated denials that he will not be a candidate the sincerity of these declarations is questioned. Nearly all the declarations is questioned. Nearly all the State officials are supporting Mr. Hanna, and the question of the President's in-dorsement is a matter of serious doubt.

There is no doubt but Miss Kaiser was murdered by a negro, and in the present state of excitement the disposition is strong to hold the entire negro population of the county responsible for the crime.

Some of the negro families who were driven from their homes have taken refuge in Lawrenceburg and will be protected.
